Lasting Relationship with CDC

By Lillian Palmer

Sublette Center residents look forward to spending time with little visitors from the Children's Discovery Center every week or so. A teacher and aid bring the children over, with crafts and games in tow. Residents and children gather together.

The Center has had a long-lasting relationship with the CDC. The intergenerational outreach program called Grandmas and Grandpas, started in 1997, with the inception of Pinedale's CDC.

"It has been the longest collaboration in the history of the CDC," Executive Director Kalie Miles said. "The program has become the forefront of our program."

It's now been a year since the children were permitted back inside the building, following the Covid-19 pandemic. "We were so happy when we could go back over and see them. This program holds a special place in our hearts," Miles said. "There is nothing that brings more joy than seeing all the smiling faces when the children come over to play."

The month of August means school is just around the corner. Were you excited for school to start or dreaded it? Who was your favorite teacher and what is a lesson you learned from them?

*"Oh I looked forward to it, I couldn't wait, because there were so many exciting things to learn. I had several favorite teachers over the years. Miss Rockwell was math and reading, and music. What I learned from her was that knowing songs could be important and add to your enjoyment of life."
Favorite subject: math*

Maxine

"I could take it or leave it. I was smart, I just didn't like to study. My favorite teacher was Miss Mandel. I learned how to get to school on time, because I was late all the time. She would be aggravated at me a lot, so I got the vibe."

Favorite subject: biology

Polly

*"Oh no, I looked forward to going to school. See, my dad sometimes taught school, so probably him. He tried to teach me to play the piano but I wasn't very good at it."
Favorite subject: music*

Elizabeth "Jo"

"No way, I'd rather be in the country, on the farm. I wouldn't have any homework, so I could go fly fishing. We'd take two weeks off at the end of summer, and we'd go after the chipmunks with bow and arrow."

Favorite subject: social studies, art, Greek

Derick "Dery"

*"Yes, I was excited. Mr. Lockhart, and to answer questions correctly when you're asked, because I got a bad grade if I didn't. He was my 6th grade teacher."
Favorite subject: algebra*
